CONVICT MAKES ESCAPE FROM THE COUNTY CAMP JUST WEST OF KINGSTON

LEFT AT CAMP AS SICK
BIG NEGRO GETS AWAY; TRAIL LOST AT TOMOKA

OFFICERS ARE NOW HUNTING FOR W. SANDERS, SENTENCED AT LAST COURT TERM FOR GRAND LARCENY.

Working the old trick of playing sick and being left at the camp in charge of the cook when the other convicts were taken out to work on the road, Will Sanders, a colored convict employed with the county gang improving the Kingston road, made his escape just after noon Thursday.

The convict made his way north from the camp, went by Ormond and the last seen of him was the other side of the Tomoka river about 5 o'clock Thursday evening, when he was noticed by a colored man. At this point he cut into the woods and all trace of him was lost.

There are about 20 or 25 county convicts employed in the work of improving the Main street road through Kingston through from the river to the old Daytona road and the camp is located west of the railroad track. When the men returned to the camp for dinner yesterday, Sanders complained of being ill and unable to work and he was left at the camp, with the cook as guard, while the men were taken out for the afternoon's labors.

Shortly after he was missed by the cook and the alarm was given. Supposing he had gone to a grove west of the camp the guards began searching in that vicinity, but without success. Later it was learned he had been seen running east from the camp toward the railroad track, and the trail toward Ormond was immediately taken up.

One of the guards took an automobile and made a hurried trip to Ormond, and learned the man had been seen going north through the place. Leaving the auto the guard boarded the northbound afternoon train, just due, and went to Harwood, where he was unable to find any trace of the missing man.

Another guard followed the first guard to Ormond and took the abandoned car to push the pursuit toward the Tomoka river. Just north of the river he found a colored man who had seen the convict cut into the woods about 5 o'clock, but there the trail was lost.

In the meantime the first guard had returned to Ormond and found

STRIKERS TRY TO BLOW UP TUNNEL

DISCOVERED IN THE ATTEMPT TO DYNAMITE THE SHAFT

BATTLE BETWEEN STRIKERS, DEPUTY SHERIFFS AND RAIL-ROAD GUARDS TAKES PLACE NEAR HACKENSACK.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Dec. 13 — Strikers were discovered just in the act of attempting to dynamite the shaft leading to the Erie tunnel near Edgewater today.

Immediately after the discovery deputy sheriffs and railroad guards fired on the strikers. The fire was returned by the strikers, but so far as learned no persons were seriously injured.

CLAY BREAKS SILENCE AND CONFESSES

IN SHADOW OF GALLOWS
CONVICTED MAN SPEAKS

FOR MONTHS ATLANTA PRISON-ER HAS REFUSED TO SPEAK A WORD AND HAS BEEN SHAM-MING INSANITY.

ATLANTA, Dec. 13—In the shadow of the gallows today, Robert Clay, convicted wife murderer, who for months has refused to speak a word and has shammed insanity, broke his silence an hour before the time set for the execution.

"I was trying to save my neck," said Clay. "Tell everybody I am not insane, that I played a desperate game and lost. I am ready to go, and I have no fears."

Then Clay confessed to the crime for which he was convicted. The trap at the gallows was sprung at 12:12 o'clock this afternoon and Clay paid the murderers' penalty.

GANG MAN ARRESTED IN ANCIENT CITY

ALLEGED WIRE TAPPER

HEAD OF GONDORF OUTFIT RE-PORTED TO HAVE BEEN AR-RESTED TODAY IN THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—J. A. Dowling, reported to be the head of the gang of Gondorf wire tappers, was arrested today in New Orleans, according to a message received here.

A second telegram has been received from St. Augustine, Florida, stating that Albert Chase, another member of the gang, has been arrested there. Chase is wanted on a charge of securing $2,000 from S. J. Jones, a wealthy Pittsburg man, through a wire tapping fraud last spring.

Among other things charged to the Gondorf gang are the swindling of K. C. Sidbury and A. C. Powell of Wilmington, N. C.

MEANWHILE THE FIGHTING BETWEEN THE TURKISH AND GREEK TROOPS CONTINUES

GREEKS WIN DECISIVE BATTLE ON LAND AND FLEETS ARE NOW ENGAGED IN FIERCE
NAVAL ENGAGEMENT.

LONDON, Dec. 13 — Preliminary conferences were held here today by the delegates to the Turkish-Balkan peace conference, which will begin its sessions Monday. The conferences will be continued through tomorrow.

All news concerning the battles on both land and sea between the Turkish and Greek forces was received here with eager interest, but none of the delegates would comment on the situation.

Greeks Win Victory—
ATHENS, Dec. 13—The Greek army won a decisive victory from the Turks at Pentapigdis today, driving the Turks from Camo, and capturing large quantities of arms, ammunition and provisions. The battle was fought 50 miles south of Janina.

Fierce Battle in Progress—
CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 13 — A fierce battle is now raging between the Turkish and Greek fleets in the Aegean sea. A wireless message received here states that the Turkish fleet moved out from the Dardanelles and attacked the Greek fleet in the open sea. The fierce battle is now in progress.

Negotiations May Collapse—
CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 13—The port today instructed the Turkish peace delegates in London to hold no communication with the Greeks until Greece has signed the armistice. This action may result in the collapse of negotiations as the Balkans are determined to accept no terms unsatisfactory to Greece.

Servia to Fight Austria—
LONDON, Dec. 13—It is unofficially reported here today that Servia has declared war against Austria. The Servian envoys here say they have received no official news to this effect.

Extraordinary Dry Spell.

Young Dan (watching the tide going out on his first visit to the seashore)—My oath, dad! They can do with some rain down here. Why, I can see the blessed dam dryin' up!—Sydney Bulletin.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CHRISTMAS POPCORN.
LAST fall's popcorn is in fine condition for popping now. The best results are attained if corn is first placed under the faucet and thoroughly wet, then shaken dry and left on the back of the stove in the popper, moving it gently back and forth until the corn swells a little and becomes perfectly dry.

Shake over a steady hot fire, when the grains will pop into great kernels, the texture being remarkably light and delicate.

Butter and Salt Dressing.
Salted Popcorn.—Empty the corn into a tin pan, sprinkle lightly with salt and desired pour over half a cupful of melted butter to every pan of corn. Shake, and toss until every kernel is seasoned.

Little tartan stockings overcast with scarlet wool and gathered about the neck and filled with sugared popcorn and candies make a pretty addition to the Christmas tree or supplement the row of stockings hanging in the chimney corner.

With Maple Sugar.
Popcorn Balls.—When the corn is popped cook half a pound of maple sugar with quarter of a cup of water until it threads. Add a dash of vanilla and pour it over the popcorn slowly until it is thoroughly sticky. Then with clean but wet hands form it into balls. Dry the balls on buttered paper.

Popcorn Crisp.—Take a big pan of fresh popped corn, taking care that all the hard kernels are sifted out. Pour over the corn some hot molasses taffy; then work lightly with the tips of your buttered fingers until all the kernels slightly adhere to each other. This can be molded into balls, but is more delicious if left loose.

Cakes or Balls.
Popcorn Candy.—Take some fresh large grains of popcorn and pop over the fire enough to make four quarts. Take two cupfuls of sugar, a cupful of water and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Put these into an enameled saucepan on the stove and boil until the syrup will thread. Then stir in the popcorn, take the mixture from the fire, stirring it until it cools. Then form into little cakes or balls.

Mr. Pimm and Mr. Manchester and family were associated as pastor and church members in the Baptist church of Factoryville, Pa., and this was a very pleasant reunion on each side.

Last week Mrs. Alice Godsmark wrote to Prof. Rolfs, director of the agricultural and experiment station in the Gainesville university for information concerning the best means of destruction for the caterpillar, which is just now doing great damage on Halifax avenue to the foliage of the scrub oaks and bay trees, but more especially the latter. The letter was answered by Prof. J. R. Watson, entomologist, in which the writer stated that lead arsenate used with a spray pump would undoubtedly kill the caterpillar with one application used in a proportion of six pounds of paste to 50 gallons of water. Prof. Watson further stated that a newer insecticide-zinc arsenite, if obtainable, would be more effective, two pounds of the powder to 50 gallons of water. In conclusion he asked for a number of specimens of the live caterpillars and the cocoons as he was interested to know which of the caterpillar species caused the present trouble.

Jos. R. Davis arrived Saturday from Philadelphia and is a guest at the Princess Issena. Mr. Davis' handsome home on Atlantic avenue, North Seabreeze, being built by Contractor Fuquay is expected to be finished by January 1, in spite of delays caused by non-arrival of material.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Hildreth of Wheeling, W. Va., arrived Friday and are domiciled in the Bernard cottage on Ocean boulevard. They will be joined by the remainder of the party, B. M. Caldwell, son and servant before the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. Hildreth spent last winter in Orlando.

Miss Violet Middleton and mother came home Monday night from Holly Hill, where they have been spending some time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dates, who arrived last week and were with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Williams for a couple of days, have taken up their abode in Holly Hill, occupying Dick Lyle's pretty bungalow. Mr. Dates has leased a plot of ground from C. S. Harris and will experiment in onions and strawberries.

President E. L. Potter of Hotel Clarendon is registered at the Princess Issena, in the meantime the remodeling of his handsome home on Ocean boulevard is nearly completed.

Among the other arrivals at the Princess Issena for the week are: Mr. and Mrs. L. Wilks, Canada; W. F. Peas, San Francisco; Mrs. A. G. Jameson, Somerville, N. Y.; C. C. Collier, New York; S. E. Harris, Philadelphia, Pa.; R. A. Burget, Cheshire, Mass.; A. J. Drew, Stamford, Conn.; Miss Louise Marion, W. W. Marion, Stamford, Conn.

Major and Mrs. A. C. Houghton of Toledo, Ohio, friends of Miss Ott, will arrive next Wednesday to occupy rooms in her attractive cottage on Halifax avenue for a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Gamble and daughters, who have been abroad for a couple of months the past summer, are expected to arrive on the 17th to spend the season at their winter home on the Halifax.

Mr. and Mrs. Emill Junge of Conger, N. Y., friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Hunt, who spent the winter here two seasons previous, are among the weeks' arrivals to locate for the winter.

The street committee has been busy this week underbrushing some of the dense foliage on Halifax avenue in order to get better benefits from new electric street lights. Also a number of vacant lots have been cleared of the accumulations of scrub and brush to fire-guard residential property.

At a special meeting the council confirmed the appointment of John R. Lewis as marshal of the town of Seabreeze.

Mrs. H. L. Kochersperger entertained at the Cherookee beach cottage Saturday night at a chop suey party in honor of her charming niece, Miss Marion Knowlton, of Maine. The honoree was becomingly attired in old rose chamoisee satin trimmed in silver crystals. The novelty of the refreshments was the chop suey and rice served in oriental style. The excellent Japanese punch was much enjoyed, and altogether a very delightful evening was spent by the gay company and gracious hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Farrell and daughter, Miss Margaret and mother, Mrs. McGregor, are expected this week Saturday to spend the season as usual in their beautiful winter home on the Halifax.

New cement walk is being laid in the Geneva grounds to the west of the hotel.

Dr. Anna Starring and Mrs. Elizabeth Curry of Detroit, Mich., came in Saturday afternoon and joined Miss Mullett and mother for a season sojourn at their winter home on Halifax avenue. Dr. Starring and Miss Mullett are cousins.

M. Zimmerman spent Tuesday in Seabreeze, bringing down a wagon load of fine citrus fruit from his orange grove at Ormond. Mr. Zimmerman says his crop of oranges this year is the largest he has ever raised. Miss Mullett will add two rooms and extend the front porch in remodeling her cottage on Halifax avenue. Dr. Mullett will have charge of the work.

J. L. Lee and family have taken the west floor apartments of Miss Kelley's beach house.

Phillip Stewart and family arrived Monday from Gorham, N. H., where they have been all summer and are occupying their home on Grandview avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackmer will arrive from the north this week to occupy their last season apartments in the Mott house on Peninsula drive.

NOVELTY IN DRINKING FOUNTAINS

The latest thing in sanitary drinking fountains has just been installed by the government in Lafayette Square, Washington, across the street from the White House. The water is carried into the bottom of the drinking cup by a rubber hose and the cup is continually running over, so that it is not necessary for the lips to come into contact with the metal.

Miss Mullett will add two rooms and extend the front porch in remodeling her cottage on Halifax avenue. Dr. Mullett will have charge of the work.

J. L. Lee and family have taken the west floor apartments of Miss Kelley's beach house.

Phillip Stewart and family arrived Monday from Gorham, N. H., where they have been all summer and are occupying their home on Grandview avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackmer will arrive from the north this week to occupy their last season apartments in the Mott house on Peninsula drive.

Miss Jessie Tomlinson, who went to Griffin last August to enter upon her school work will close her term on the 20th and spend the holidays at home.

Wm. Mott arrived Friday from Shenectady, N. Y., and joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Mott at their home on Peninsula drive, north.

L. Z. Burdick has the contract to build a boathouse for E. H. Hotchkiss on his river front property in Daytona Beach.

A pleasantly informal Christmas program will be given at the public school auditorium Friday afternoon, Dec. 20, all the rooms taking part in the entertainment. The program will consist of vocal solos, quartettes, motion song, etc., and will begin at 1:30. The parents and patrons of the school are cordially invited to be present.

The high school is planning a drama to be staged some time in January, which will be placed on the boards at the Daytona high school building. They are very enthusiastic over it. More correctly speaking the entertainment will consist of two comedy performances: A Quilting Party, 1830 and In Office Hours; a Modern Drama.

Capt. B. F. McCoy of Holly Hill was calling on friends in Seabreeze Tuesday morning. The captain says they will not put their new boat on the run to Palm Beach this season.

Burgman brothers have had their boat, Toronita, hauled out of the water at Wilcox's dock to be put in commission by E. B. Fordham, who is at work on it this week.

The many friends of Mayor W. A. Baggett will be glad to learn that he is improving and is recovering the use of his left leg and arm to some extent. He is taken for an airing in his chair on bright days.

E. B. Putnam's handsome car, a Hudson "6," carrying seven passengers, which reached Jacksonville yesterday, will be brought down by the boat, Swan, tomorrow or next day.

J. T. Carner and daughter of Stroudsburg, Pa., have been located by E. A. Branch in the Eustis cottage for the winter.

Weaver Villa has been taken this week by John Young and family, including his father and mother, who arrived from Indianapolis, Ind.

The Clarendon auto bus and truck have been put on for the season, and are meeting all trains to convey the help and supplies for the big hotel.

Miss McGlashen arrived from Atlanta Saturday and it at the Myfield. She brings the distressing news that Mrs. D. C. Rankins has suffered a severe relapse, and is critically ill at the home of her relative, Mr. Walther.

Clark G. Smith has this week let the contract to A. S. Randall to have his five lots on Ora street graded.

Miss Bigelow, the Clarendon auditor, arrived Monday afternoon from New York. She has been with Madam Potter at several resort places this summer.

Dr. Howard failed to get off last week. He and his niece left Monday on their return to Sanford, but not until the doctor had put up a very neat cement sign, Tusawilla, naming his stone cottage on Atlantic avenue.

THE DEMAND FOR AMUSEMENT.

Man living in primitive times was in direct contact with nature. He raised his own food, made his own clothes and built his own house. He had many chances of varying his occupation throughout the day. All his work was educational. He had the stimulus of seeing a piece of work begun and ended and of enjoying the fruits thereof. All this is in marked contrast with the life of the average factory worker. All those qualities which one admires most in a man are deadened when he is compelled to stand day after day and week after week before a huge machine of which he becomes but a part.

It is during leisure rather than during work time that character is formed. The basis of character is the will, and at no time does this function of the mind have so free a scope as during recreation. It is then that all restraint is removed and we do as we will. The excellent effect of recreation on character is seen in children at play. Often for the first time they learn the meaning of self restraint. They learn the significance of co-operation and group action in those games requiring team work. At play the cheat is quickly discovered and punished with ostracism by his fellows. Such object lessons in the fundamentals of morality are invaluable in the normal development of any child. After all, character is acquired from the environment and not from the blood. Amusement is gaining recognition as a force as potent as formal instruction.—Frank D. Watson in "Charities and the Commons."

TOWN SELLS CEMENT WALK FOR ADVERTISING

Authorities of Hope, Ark., Have Novel Scheme.

Wishing to extend a cement sidewalk a distance of three or four blocks to the new fair ground and having no fund for the purpose, the town of Hope, Ark., constructed the extension by selling each outlined block of it as advertising space. A plat was made of the walk, showing it divided into numbered squares. A few of the squares were retained on which to place a short history of the town, giving names of prominent men, various industries, population at different dates and the names of county officers at the time, and the remainder were sold for advertising.

In most cases the advertising was done by forming the letters in the top coat before the final set, but a few of the advertisers furnished aluminum letters and numerals about three inches high. Although the sidewalk has now been laid for some time, the outlines of the letters are said to be as when first made.

THE COUNTRY STORE.

The country store is not yet doomed and never will be. We trust this is a true prophecy. The country store is a time honored and indispensable institution and for generations has been the wonder, envy and inspiration of the small boy, besides being the original department store.—Agricultural Epitome.

AFTER CITY MANAGER.

Sumter Wants Engineer to Take Charge of Community.

At the request of the city commissioners recently elected under the new charter of Sumter, S. C., the chamber of commerce of that city is endeavoring to find the right man for the office of city manager. An announcement is said by A. V. Swift, secretary, stating that applications for this position will be received. An efficient competitor to oversee public works, such as paving, lighting, water supply, etc., is especially desired.

The city manager will hold office as long as he serves satisfaction to the commissioners. He will have complete administrative control of the city, subject to the board of the board of three elected commissioners. Excess of funds is not necessary.

How?

"The engagement that Jack gave me is a beauty," remarked Ethel. "Yes," replied Maud, "I know it is."

Christmas Recipes

English Mistletoe Cake.

This cake is both ornamental and toothsome, for it shows the genuine Christmas colors. For the layers allow three ounces each of butter and sugar, three eggs, one-half pound of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder and one wineglassful of orange flower water. Separate the eggs and beat the whites to a stiff froth, the yolks to a cream. Beat the sugar and butter together, add the yolks of the eggs, the flour sifted with the baking powder, the orange flower water and lastly the whites of the eggs. Bake in three layers. For the filling whip one-half pint of cream until stiff, sweeten slightly and divide in two portions. Color one with spinach green and add grated coconut to the other. Spread the green cream over the first layer of the cake, cover with the second, spread over the white cream and place the third layer on top. Ice thickly with plain boiled icing and decorate while fresh with bits of candied citron cut to represent mistletoe leaves, using silver comfits for the berries.

English Plum Pudding.

The recipe for the plum pudding is as follows: Sift one cupful of flour into a basin, add half a pound of bread-crumbs, half a pound brown sugar, half a pound of chopped suet, half a pound of currants, half a pound of sultana raisins, half a pound of chopped seeded raisins, one cupful of chopped citron peel, half a cupful of blanched and chopped almonds, grated rind and strained juice of one lemon, one teaspoonful of baking powder, two teaspoonfuls of mixed spices, one teaspoonful of grated nutmeg and half a teaspoonful of salt. Beat up four eggs, add half a glass of brandy and one cupful of milk and pour this among the dry ingredients. Mix thoroughly, pour into a buttered mold, cover with a greased paper and steam readily for six hours. Turn out and decorate with blanched almonds, mistletoe and holly. Serve with brandy sauce or hard sauce.

Mince-meat For Pies.

Two pounds of lean beef, boiled and ground fine; one pound beef suet, minced and freed from strings; five pounds of apples, peeled, cored and minced; two pounds of raisins, seeded and halved; two pounds cleaned currants, washed and drained; one pound sultana raisins, stemmed and washed; three-quarters of a pound of citron, cut into tiny bits; one tablespoonful each of cloves and allspice, two tablespoonfuls each of cinnamon and mace, a tablespoonful of ground nutmeg, a tablespoonful of salt, two and one-half pounds of brown sugar, a quart of sherry and a pint of brandy. Mix well together all the dry ingredients, taking care to incorporate thoroughly the spices. Last of all, stir in the sherry and brandy, reserving a little of each to add when you make the pies. Pack away in a crock until needed.

A Dainty Dessert.

For a dessert there is a whipped cream meringue which is effective and toothsome.

It is made by whipping the white part of three eggs, adding a cup of sugar, a little with each egg, and then a pinch of salt and a pinch of cream of tartar. It should be served on a bed of whipped cream.

The sherry and cream is also delicious and carries off the note of nut that should be suggested in every Yuletide party. Plain white ice cream is frozen in round molds and when taken out a dozen maraschino cherries are put over each one.

Salad In Ice Block.

Smooth a block of ice with a hot iron, making a cave in the center. Fill this with crisp lettuce, hearts of tender celery cut in small pieces. Add slices of winter radishes and small raw clams. Season with salt and pepper, one teaspoonful of dry mustard, one tablespoonful horseradish and the juice of two lemons. Place on several thicknesses of cloth on a deep platter, wreath with green and serve at once.

Chicken Pie With Cream Crust.

Have a chicken disjointed as for fricassee and cook in water to cover until tender. Remove the large bones, then season with salt and pepper. Make a gravy from the liquid in the kettle, in which a bit of bay leaf is simmered, allowing a level tablespoonful of flour to each cup of liquid. Add one-quarter cupful of butter and when melted pour over the chicken, which has been laid in the paste lined dish.

A Christmas Duck.

Clean and truss a domestic duck. Fill with one large cupful of mashed potato seasoned with one teaspoonful of grated onion, pepper and salt. Add a tablespoonful of butter and the beaten white of one egg.

Roast and when the duck is served garnish with strips of potato, slices of hard-boiled eggs, and a few mushrooms. This makes a really handsome centerpiece for a Christmas dinner.

A Baked Ham.

Take a ham, weigh it and salt it with one cup of salt. Rub the salt all over the ham and let it stand for two or three days. Then rub it with a mixture of one part of brown sugar and one part of molasses. Bake in a slow oven for four hours. This is from "The Housewife's Companion."

BIG REAL ESTATE DEAL
CLOSED THIS MORNING

C. W. ROWLANDER PURCHASES A TRACT OF LAND IN SOUTH
PART OF CITY FOR PURPOSE OF DEVELOPMENT.

The biggest real estate deal thus far this season was consummated this morning when C. W. Rowlander of Woodland, Mich., purchased from J. G. Brown all of block 63, on South Ridgewood avenue, just within the city limits.

Mr. Rowlander, who last winter purchased property on North Ridgewood avenue and put it on the market in residence lots and later bought the Combs property at the corner of Ridgewood and Live Oak avenues and is now improving it, will subdivide this South Ridgewood avenue tract as he did that on North Ridgewood and put it on the market in the same manner.

A strong feature of this sale and one plainly showing the marvelous growth of Daytona and the advance of real estate values, is the fact that this block of land for which Mr.
Rowlander pays $10,000 was purchased by Mr. Brown a little less than eight years ago for the sum of $2,000.

In addition to the above purchase,
Mr. Rowlander also bought, this morning, the Wilder property, block 2, adjoining the Brown property on the south and located just outside the city limits, giving him an additional frontage of 500 feet on Ridgewood. He also acquired the property at the corner of Ridgewood avenue and Bay street, owned by George L.
Fitzgerald of Philadelphia, Pa. All the transfers were made through the Bingham & Thompson real estate agency and the total amount paid for the several pieces of property was $22,500.

FIFTEEN ENJOYED A PROGRESSIVE DINNER.

One of the first of the season dinner parties, occurred Thursday evening when a progressive dinner party in which 15 participated was held.
The first course was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Pope, the second at Mr. and Mrs. F. J.
Niver's, the third at Mr. and Mrs.
M. P. Cornwall's, followed by the fourth course at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neville H. Clark, and the dessert course at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Bohannon. Those participating were: Mr. and Mrs. F. W.
Pope, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Cornwall, Mr. and Mrs. Neville H. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. W. Maxwell Hankins, Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Bohannon, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Niver, Mr. and Mrs. T.

SYSTEMATIC TEACHING OF HYGIENE IS NECESSARY

Individual Attention to Child's Habits
Will Teach Cleanliness.

Systematic instruction in the principles of hygiene is necessary to keep pupils from becoming lost in the multitude of details. This instruction should be founded on a solid knowledge of the structure and functions of the different organs of the body and of the principles governing metabolism and microbe infection. As long as the people of countries like the United States persistently follow hygienic fads and fail to discriminate between arrant quacks and reputable medical practitioners it is an exceedingly short-sighted practicality that desires to exclude from our school courses in hygiene those fundamentals of anatomy, physiology and bacteriology which throw the broad guiding lines through the maze of hygienic practice.

Individual attention should be given to the hygienic habits of the child.
Toothbrush clubs, fresh air clubs and other organized hygienic efforts are very valuable in fixing correct living habits. Much can be done to develop a right attitude toward hygienic questions and to fix the habit of properly regulating local environment by good hygienic conditions in the schoolroom and in the home.

The causes of sickness and the method of preventing it should be taught in spite of the objections of those who insist that it is wrong to instill into the childish mind ideas of disease. It is not the teaching of hygiene in schools, but the presence of illness and death in the homes, that gives sensitive children morbid ideas of disease and death.
From Address by Professor John W.
Riddle at Hygiene Congress.

HOME TRADE NOTES.

Would you hinder the further concentration of wealth in great cities and all the resultant evils you will find that the simple principle of patronizing home institutions instead of foreign ones will work wonders.

Just so long as the merchants of the country insist on carrying on business in the manner that their fathers did twenty years ago just so long will the catalogue houses continue to increase their patronage.

ATTRACT YOUR CUSTOMERS.

Keep the Dollars at Home by Proper Display of Goods.

The way to keep the boys and girls at home is to make home attractive to them. The way to keep dollars at home is to make home attractive to the dollars. There is no other way.

Our local merchants should make their trade attractive. This means that they should play up their goods, just as a newspaper plays up a story.
Goods can be played up in many ways.
Advertising in the local paper and displaying in the store window are two good ways. Another good way is to make the store attractive inside and outside.

Another is to convince customers that they are getting value for their money. Still another is to have the "big customer" wants, make him feel that you are trying to serve him. If you conquer him and you conquer him to himself. You must make it most important of all to play up the betterment of the community.
A store that plays up the community and the people who live in it, will be a success in every way.

Filling the Hollows.
Within ten years, it is estimated, the miles of land around the city will have been filled in with rubbish and coal ashes.

YOSEMITE VALLEY.

Stream Erosion and Glaciers Bored the Wonderful Gorge.

That the wonderful gorge known as Yosemite valley owed its origin to both the action of streams and of glaciers is the conclusion reached in a publication entitled "Sketch of Yo-semite National Park," issued by the department of the interior.

Professor J. D. Whitney, the first scientist to study the Sierra, thought the deeply incised character of the Yosemite valley to be the result of the sinking of a local block of the earth's crust, having the exact outlines of the valley. Glaciers, he stoutly asserted, had never so much as entered it. Galen Clark believed the valley to have originated by the exploding of a number of close set domes of molten rock, subsequent stream and ice erosion smoothing out the chasm to its present form. Professor Silliman considered the Yosemite as a great rupture caused by subterranean forces—a rent later partly filled with rock debris.

Clarence King was the first to point out the prominent role which the ice of the glacial epochs must have played in the elaboration of the Yosemite valley. John Muir goes further and holds that the Yosemite, like all the canyons and other features of the Sierra Nevada, was sculptured almost wholly by ancient glaciers. In contrast to this view is that of H. W.
Turner and several others, according to whom the Yosemite is nothing but a stream cut valley which has suffered little if any modification at the hands of the ice, but which owes much of its peculiar shaping to the influence of the strong vertical joints displayed in its walls.

Willard D. Johnson, a close student of ice erosion, considers the Yosemite and Hetch Hetchy valleys to be products of stream erosion, subsequently widened by the characteristic sapping action of the ice. Others, notably E. C. Andrews of New South Wales and Douglas W. Johnson, have followed, all uniting in attributing considerable importance to glacial erosion, but differing somewhat in their estimates of the amount of work they believe should be assigned to it.

The most probable explanation is that the Yosemite and Hetch Hetchy valleys both have been developed through stream erosion and have later been greatly deepened and enlarged by repeated ice invasions; further, that they owe their strangely clean cut, moat-like forms and the diversified sculpturing of their cliffs to the structure of the country rock, which controlled the action of the eroding agent.

LUXURY IN THE AIR.

Balloon Travel With All the Comforts of a Modern Hotel.

A Zeppelin, passing across the sky, with a crew of the best and most skilled men, is just the thing for those who want to see the world from a new point of view. It is a kind of modern-day Noah's ark, a perfect truck and perfect school.

At present, these individual balloons are placed in position and launched served much as it is in the ordinary bureau of the air. There are some airships, an engine, a motor, all things hot, vegetables, salt, cheese and ice, more of a dinner than luncheon and all served up through the chef and waiters (and the attendants of a great hotel of their kind). The principle of the balloon service has been brought into service in preparing the food, the exhaust from the engines being made to supply heat.

The comforts are all those of every modern hotel. The cabin is kept at an unvarying comfortable temperature by means of pipes that carry the exhaust heat from the engines. There is more room for action than in an ordinary chair car. In the lavatories are hot and cold water. There is a library with daily papers and the best of books. There is a lounge for those who are willing to sleep away the hours of flight.—World's Work.

The Mikado and His Cooks.

For some years after the former Mikado adopted the western mode of living his meals were prepared by a Frenchman. He was determined, however, that by cooking, as in other branches of knowledge, the Japanese should become independent of the services of foreigners. The best of his kitchen cooks, Oshichi, was sent to France and carefully trained in all the secrets of the art. He was then returned to his native land and the Mikado's kitchen was transformed into a model of the best of French cooking.

Uncle Pennywise Says:

There's a conundrum here every minute, whatever the sucker rate may be.

A coach was halted on Hounslow
Health, England, one moonlit night by a masked robber. As the highwayman rode up to the scared driver, with leveled pistol, a girl leaned out of the coach window and demanded to know what he wanted. With a sweeping bow the thief answered:
"Only the honor of dancing one measure with your fair self."

Helping her gracefully from the coach, he proceeded to go through a stately dance with her, then and there in the dust of the road. After which he handed her back into the coach, bowed low again, sprang to the saddle and galloped away, having stolen nothing except five minutes of a pretty girl's time.

The highwayman was Jack Sheppard. And the odd adventure set every one in England to talking about him. Which was just what his vanity-crazed brain wished. (Dick Turpin, Claude Duval and other scound-rels of the road are said to have done the same thing—from the same motive.)

Jack Sheppard's adventures have formed the plots of dozens of dime novels. He is also the hero of at least one famous book and play. Boys in olden times, reading a garbled tale of his exploits, were wild to become highwaymen. As a matter of fact, Jack Sheppard was merely a low-born, reckless pickpocket and hold-up man, with a twisted, depraved nature and a degenerate brain. The accompanying illustration (reproduced from a genuine portrait) shows he was not the handsome dandy that the dime novel has made him. His homely face is not unlike that of a criminal idiot.

Sheppard was only twenty-two when he was hanged. He was born in London in 1702 and was brought up in a poorhouse. When he was old enough to work he was apprenticed to a carpenter. Then it was that he learned much about locks and bolts and the best way to cut through walls. That seems to have been all he mastered of the carpenter trade. But it was enough for his purposes.

He deserted his master and began to pick up a living by petty theft.
Being mentally deficient, he found this an easier way to get on than by working. He was soon caught and brought before a magistrate as a "runaway apprentice." He was released and at once entered on a career of wholesale robbery. He afterward confessed that he stole from every one he could.

This sort of thing brought him a certain notoriety, but not enough. He was a very ordinary, cheap kind of burglar. So he took to eccentric feats to get himself talked about. The dance in the road was but one of several such antics. He used to dispose of his plunder through one Jonathan Wild, who was not only a receiver of stolen goods but a sort of thief-catcher as well. When Wild had gotten all the money possible out of a crook he would turn the fellow over to justice.
Thus he made an excellent living in both ways.

Sheppard quarreled with Wild, who thereupon set the officers of the law upon him. Jack was arrested, brought to trial and condemned to be hanged.
He was locked into one of the strongest cells in Newgate prison. For already he had a reputation as a clever jail-breaker. He was handcuffed and was chained to the cell floor. Yet he got away. Here is the story (probably exaggerated by the writers of that day) of his escape:

He freed himself of his chains, burrowed into the thick, ill-made wall with such instruments as he could find at hand, wriggled through the gap he made in the masonry and reached an inner yard. There he climbed a chimney and made his way into a corridor. He forced or picked the locks of six doors and came out at last upon the prison roof. Finally, he could not get to the street for such a height, he went back to his cell snatched up his blankets, tore an opening in the roof and let himself down to safety.

Two weeks later, while he was drunk, he was recaptured. Twice he escaped, but was too vain and stupid to keep his freedom. Through drunkenness or vanity he always made some blunder that led to his capture. He was hanged on Nov. 15, 1734. A mob of 200,000 people—from dancers to ragpickers—turned out to see him die.

When one separates the truth from the masses of silly legends about him, Jack Sheppard appears to have been a dull, vicious scoundrel whose only cleverness was a sort of jail-breaking. Even among the desperadoes of his time he was a very poor figure.

THE LETTERS WERE MIXED

Queer Happening That Settled a Lovers' Quarrel.

Miss Buckingham took up two notes and read them with a bored expression on her beautiful and aristocratic countenance. Then she threw them down and on her crest stamped paper wrote two replies. One was a declination to a proposal of marriage, the other an invitation for a proposer to call, intimating that he would be accepted. Addressing two envelopes, one to Hamilton Gillis, No. — East Forty-eighth street; the other to George B. Hilliers, Union club, city, she laid both notes and envelopes on the desk before her. Then she darkened the room so that she could not see any of them, mixed them, took up one of the notes, put it in one of the envelopes, sealed and stamped it, tore up the other note and envelope, threw the pieces into a wastebasket and sent the other to the mail without looking at the address. Her intention was to remain ignorant of the man she had chosen till he presented himself.

This was a dangerous thing to do, for the reason that Miss Buckingham had a number of suitors, and she wrote an illegible hand.

The next evening a card was handed to her bearing the name of G. B. Hilliers. She glanced at it, gave a slight shrug, fingered her back hair before a glass and descended the stairs. On entering the drawing room she found a very different man from either of the two to whom she had written.

A great many things flashed through her mind in an infinitely short space of time. First, she had written one of the notes (evidently the one that had been mailed) to George B. Hilliers, and it had fallen into the hands of Gustavus B. Hilliers. This was not remarkable, since both men belonged to the same club. Second, how was she to escape the results of her blunder? Mr. Hilliers was one of her many suitors, a suitor she loved and by whom she had supposed herself to have been fitted.

"Marian!" he said, advancing, but stopped, repelled by her expression. "Marian," he began again, "what does this mean? Have you led me to believe that you had seen your glaring injustice only to give me additional pain?"

"How did you happen to—get?" "Your letter? I returned today."

"No, no; I didn't know you were away. I mean—what right have you to?" She balked again.

"Marian!" he exclaimed. "No, no; I didn't mean that."

There was a short pause, after which he said, "When we parted last I told you that I could not brook."

"Brook! It was I who could not."

"You? The objectionable words were spoken to me."

"What words?"

"What words? Why, in reference to that note I wrote you to which you deigned no reply. I sent another asking for the cause of your silence. You replied that you would not address a note to a man at his club because a friend of yours had done so and her note had been shown to others."

"And do you mean to tell me that a trivial thing like that caused you to refrain from favoring me at the next cotillion?"

"A trivial thing like that?"

"Yes. Shouldn't I have profited by my friend's experience?"

He stood looking at her in astonishment.

"Then the next time," she added, "I met you on the street you didn't speak."

"How could I when you walked by me with your—without looking at me?"

"Judging from your previous treatment of me, I supposed you intended to cut me."

"Did you expect me to bow to your shadow? Could I speak to a girl who would not even look at me?"

"You men are so!"

"So what?"

"Irritating."

"Anything else?"

"Stupid."

There was a long silence, which was broken by the man. "I believe you are right. I've been stupid. There is something about the feminine makeup that renders a woman oblivious to the frightful imputations she casts upon a man. You argued that, because some contemptible cad had betrayed a confidence, under the same circumstances an honorable man would do the same."

Miss Buckingham was silent. A faint glimmer of the fallacy of the syllogism began to dawn upon her.

"I suppose I ought to apologize," she said, "but I'm not going to do it after the way you treated me."

"My apology would be in order after, not before, yours."

"I prefer it should come first and mine shouldn't come at all."

"If I will agree to do all the apologizing will this nonsense that has been so long between us be obliterated?"

"I suppose so."

"And our former status will be renewed?"

"If you promise not to do so any more."

"Very well, I apologize for both. But what in the world did you mean by sending for me with no idea of a reconciliation?"

"I didn't. Not caring whom I married so long as you had treated me so badly, I sent the note to George Hilliers. You got it."

"Great heavens! What a close shave!"

PUBLIC AREAS AND BUILDINGS

Should Be Judiciously Scattered In Towns and Cities.

THE OLD VILLAGE SQUARE.

It Forms a Good Nucleus Upon Which to Build the Group of Public Buildings and the School Playground Needed in Rural Communities.

The public buildings of the village include the school, the church, the library and the town hall or other governmental structure. When the village is small these may well be grouped with the stores and shops about a common center. Frequently, especially in the larger villages, it is better to have a distinctly public group, although such a semipublic building as the inn may well be included.

Like all other buildings in the village, these should be straightforwardly adapted to their uses. If there is a good local building material it is well to construct of this. In any event, they should harmonize with one another in respect to size, character of architecture, material and color. They should have ample grounds about them.

About all these grounds there should be plantations of trees and shrubs. The buildings should be connected with their sites, the boundaries marked and the service areas screened. For all this it is best to depend upon the native trees and shrubs or such exotics as will be in perfect accord with them, and all the shrubbery masses should possess simplicity, breadth and harmony.

In every village there is need for public grounds. There may be a square at the business center. Another may form the central feature of the public group. Connected with the school there should be an adequate playground accessible to the children of the village at all seasons and at all times. If the village is small this one play area may be sufficient, though frequently others are needed. Then it is desirable to have under public control some space for baseball and football, even though it has to be a little out of the way.

So it is that villages as well as cities should give heed to the need for public grounds and should make provision for their realization. Yet their character should be very different from those of the cities. There should be no attempt at formal terracing, no introduction of classic fountains or of poor monuments and no use of carpet bedding. They should be made useful and attractive in as straightforward a manner as possible. They should be simple, quiet and dignified, thoroughly in keeping with the rural atmosphere of the village.—Daniel A. Clarke in Rural Manhood.

VIEW OF A CITY PARK.

After dinner the two adjourned to the library and continued to seek for a solution of the problem. About 11 o'clock Wilkins said:

"If I were ten or fifteen years younger we might find a way out, a very desirable way to me."

Miss Burroughs made no verbal reply to this, but cast her eyes down to the floor. Mr. Wilkins maintained a prolonged silence. Both were thinking hard.

"You might make your home here," he said at last. Still the girl made no reply. "But you would have to marry me."

Silence.

"Will you?"

"Yes."

His Ward

By EMILY G. BOND

John Wilkins, a bachelor of forty living in his own house, which was taken care of by an old woman who had been in the family for many years, sat down to breakfast alone. Several letters that had just been brought by the postman lay on the table, one of which was from a firm of lawyers. In forming him that by the will of the late Edward Burroughs he (Wilkins) was appointed guardian to the deceased's daughter, Alice.

"Ned Burroughs dead!" exclaimed Wilkins, much affected by the news, and for a time he gave himself up to reflections upon the loss of a chum of his younger days. Burroughs had gone to live in a different place. They had corresponded for awhile, but that inevitable separator, continued absence, had come between them, and for ten or fifteen years they had not met.

Presently the purport of the letter, his guardianship, occurred to him. He could not think of Burroughs as any older than when he last saw him and assumed that his ward was a little girl.

What this guardianship meant, whether he was expected to take care of his ward's property or his ward herself he had no idea, but his mind was soon set at rest upon opening another letter, from his ward herself, which informed him that she was without a relative in the world that she had ever seen and did not know what to do.

It seemed to Wilkins that he must see the child and learn something about her property—if she had any—and how she was to live. But just then he found it inconvenient to get away. He wrote her that the only thing for her to do was to come to him. He told her how he was situated and that Mrs. Hawkins, his housekeeper, would take excellent care of her. A reply to this letter informed him that Alice would arrive in a few days. Wilkins told Mrs. Hawkins to prepare for her reception.

"How old is she?" asked the housekeeper.

"How old is she? I don't know. She may be five or six or ten or eleven or something like that."

Mrs. Hawkins asked no more questions, but prepared a bedroom for the little girl adjoining her own in case Alice were still too young to sleep entirely alone. Perhaps she wouldn't care to sleep alone anyway.

On the morning of Alice's arrival Wilkins told his housekeeper that he would have a busy day and must rely on her to meet his ward at the station. He would send a carriage to the house at a certain hour. Mrs. Hawkins was to bring Alice home, and he would be on hand for a 6 o'clock dinner.

He was so much occupied during the day that he scarcely gave the matter a thought, but on his way home he remembered it and wondered what he would do with a child in the house. However, he could tell nothing about the matter till he had seen his ward. On entering his living room he was surprised to find a young woman dressed for dinner sitting there writing. It did not occur to him that she was Alice Wilkins. But who was she? The young lady rose—she was apparently about nineteen—and advanced to meet him. She seemed herself somewhat taken aback at his appearance.

"I'm waiting for Mr. Wilkins," she remarked.

"Beg pardon. Will you tell me—who you are?"

"I'm Mr. Wilkins' ward."

"You? Mr. Wilkins' ward? I am Mr. Wilkins."

"Dear me! I expected to meet a person the age of my father."

"Your father was just my age."

"Papa was forty. You don't look much over thirty."

During this brief dialogue a very pleasurable sensation was welling up in the bosom of Mr. Wilkins, and at the same time he was perplexed at the result of the mistake.

"Well," he said, after a welcome grasp of the hand, "you're here, and here you will have to stay till we can settle what you're to do. Fortunately, Mrs. Hawkins will make a very good chaperon and will take care of you admirably. Has she made you comfortable?"

"She has."

"I'll be ready for dinner in a few minutes."

It seemed that evening to Mr. Wilkins that his dining room looked different from ever before. The lights burned brighter, the dinner tasted better, the flowers on the table smelled sweeter. Wilkins took up the subject of his ward's future, but made no progress in settling it. As to her fortune, her father had left her nothing, and she must either marry or make her own living.

After dinner the two adjourned to the library and continued to seek for a solution of the problem. About 11 o'clock Wilkins said:

"If I were ten or fifteen years younger we might find a way out, a very desirable way to me."

Miss Burroughs made no verbal reply to this, but cast her eyes down to the floor. Mr. Wilkins maintained a prolonged silence. Both were thinking hard.

Silence.

"Will you?"

"Yes."

INTERESTING RIDES AND DRIVES POINTS WORTH VISITING

OCEAN BEACH—excellent motor north for 10 miles and south 10 miles to Mosquito inlet and the Government lighthouse at Ponce Park. The beach is the most magnificent in the world.

BEED, KNOX & BEED ORANGE GROVE—18 miles, via Ormond, one of the largest groves in Volusia county and is well worth seeing; can be reached by motor on fairly good road; can also be reached by boat.

NUMBER NINE ORANGE GROVE—large grove, passed on the way to the Beed, Knox & Beed grove, is 12 miles from Daytona.

NEW SMYRNA—16 miles from Daytona, over an excellent hard surface road; this drive is said to be the prettiest in the state. At New Smyrna are the ruins of an ancient fort and other historical spots, left by the colony of Andrew Turnbull.

OLD SPANISH MISSION—2 miles west of New Smyrna, reached by motor over good road. This mission is without authentic history but by many it is contended that this is the church built by Columbus on his second voyage to America. The altar is still extant, but at a later date the building was used as a sugar mill.

SPANISH SUGAR MILL—2 miles west of Port Orange and about 1 miles from Daytona; the machinery is still in a good state of preservation, although the mill is presumed to have been built and operated by the early Spanish settlers.

GOVERNMENT LIGHTHOUSE—at Ponce Park, 12 miles from Daytona, is reached by boat or by motor to the ocean beach.

MAMMOTH TREE—4 miles from Daytona; an abnormally large tree; reached by motor over hard-surfaced road.

DELAND—25 miles from Daytona; the county seat of Volusia county and seat of John B. Stetson university; a very picturesque city; reached by motor over hard-surfaced road.

TOMOKA RIVER—The scenic stream of Florida; reached by excursion boats which leave Daytona daily and run to the navigable head of the stream, 26 miles from the city. Generally a number of alligators may be seen in their native haunts. This is a trip no tourist should miss.

DELEON SPRINGS, 28 miles from Daytona; mammoth spring that throws out thousands of gallons of water a minute; a delightful bathing pool, and picturesque scenery. Spring is situated in an old plantation. Reached by motor over good road; a nice trip for a picnic party.

OAK HILL—hamlet, 10 miles south of New Smyrna; several orange groves in the locality; reached by motor over hard-surfaced road.

ORMOND—six miles from Daytona; here is located the Ormond hotel and a pretty town; nearby are the ruins of Spanish sugar mill's.

TURTLE MOUND—26 miles south of Daytona; reached by boat; a mammoth mound of oyster shells supposed to have been left by a prehistoric race of people. Pottery and other antiquities have been discovered in excavating the shell.

PORT ORANGE—an attractive town 6 miles south of Daytona, can be reached by motor over hard-surfaced road; or the trip one way may be made by the road and crossing the Halifax river on the Port Orange bridge, the return can be made on the ocean beach.

CLARENDON GOLF LINKS—3 miles from Daytona and immediately north of the Hotel Clarendon at Seabreeze; the links are now in good condition. The Hotel Clarendon bears the distinction of being the only fireproof winter tourist hotel in the world.

GENERALLY, you may motor in any direction from Daytona and find places and objects of interest which your driver can explain to you; there are many by-roads through the sylvan vegetation that a visitor will greatly enjoy.

Across the BorderA Story of the Supernatural

By SARAH ATHERTON

Ralph Hillman was wishing he had not taken this solitary fishing trip up Little Bear river. There is not much sport in landing a ten pounder when there is no companion to praise or deprecate one's efforts, and the bacon and biscuits prepared over the campfire lost their zest when eaten with no other companion than Nip, the mottled mongrel who was Ralph's closest friend, excepting always Francis Beale, but Beale was traveling in the orient and not available as a companion.Francis and Ralph had been brought up together. They had been playmates in childhood, had attended the same school and had gone to the same college at the same time. During their college days they had long conferences on subjects which interested youth, but which as persons grow older they do not like to think much less talk about.
The subject which fascinated them was the hereafter and the reappearance of mortals after death. Francis, though he seemed to believe such reappearances might be possible with some disembodied spirits, seemed less inclined to discuss the subject than his friend.
It appeared to affect him unpleasantly.
When Ralph proposed a compact by which the one who died first should appear if possible to the other Francis agreed, but reluctantly.Strange to relate, at this time as Ralph sat in the circle of his campfire, trying to read by the bright glow, Nip suddenly growled, and the hair on his neck rose in a stiff bristling ridge.
Ralph looked up and inclined his ear to the vague rustle of the encompassing forest, and there stepped out of the shadows none other than Francis Beale himself. With his old, whimsical smile he dropped to the ground on the other side of the fire and clasped his hands around his knees.
"By the great horn spoon, I'm glad to see you—but, man, where did you

"I CAME TO SAY GOODBY."

come from?" gasped Ralph, too astonished to give other greeting to this unexpected guest."I heard you were here, and I wanted to talk with you again," returned Beale easily."Smoke?" asked Ralph, extending pipe and tobacco box.The other shook his head. "Not now.""You are not sick, are you?" queried Ralph anxiously. He could not understand Francis Beale declining a smoke. In the old days he had earned the nickname of "The Chimney" because he was rarely without pipe or cigar between his lips."Never felt better in my life," returned Beale, leaning back against the trunk of a beech tree. "How have things gone with you, old man?""Fine and dandy," said Ralph; "only I wish I'd never started forth on this trip alone—had the beastliest time all alone. If I'd known you were within hailing distance of Chicago I'd have made connections and waited for you to join me. When did you strike my trail?""Not long ago," evaded Beale. "That's another story as some one has already said.""Well, if you want to be close mouthed about your movements latterly, at least you can spin me a yarn of your oriental trip," went on Ralph in an injured tone. "What about something to eat—coffee?"The other shook his head and gazed moodyly into the fire. "That's what I came for," he said gravely.

Ralph was puzzled. "Came for?"

"No—to spin you a yarn of what happened."

"Happened when?"

"The 8th of July."

"The 8th of July—why, that was yesterday! Oh, I forgot—of course you've been gone a year. You mean the 8th of last July."

Francis Beale made no comment.

For awhile he sat there, silent, morose. his dark eyes fixed on the fire. The dancing flames cast a rosy glow over his face and hands and lighted up the rough traveling clothes that he wore.
Ralph thought it strange that trained woodman as Beale was, he had not arrayed himself for this long and tedious fishing trip. He carried no impedimenta, and his friend attributed this to Beale's having made a small camp of his own near by or else he had dropped his kit beyond the circle of flame."Yarn away," prompted Ralph lazily as he lounged on the warm ground.
He reached out and laid his hand on Nip's bristled neck and felt the dog trembling like an aspen. "Nip's getting white livered over something," remarked Ralph."I went to Kaoling on the China coast, you know," began Beale abruptly. "You remember I was searching for some stray pieces of that rare old Kaoling porcelain, and I had been put on that trail by Hudnuth of San Francisco."Ralph nodded.
"I was the only white man within a hundred miles in any direction of the little village, and their courtesy disarmed me of any fears I may have entertained as to their hospitality. The steamer's boat which landed me returned to the big vessel, and she steamed away into the horizon, leaving me all alone on the yellow mud shore, surrounded by a chattering, tit-tling crowd of native Chinese as yellow as the mud.""Of course there was no inn to speak of, only an infested hole, into which I poked my head only once. On the outskirts of the village I found the deserted home of a prosperous merchant and made a deal with his relatives for its occupancy. There I made my headquarters, surrounded by thieving servants and aware that if I was ever caught off my guard I was done for.
They were a crowd that would have knifed me for twenty cash.""I knew that a remote Chinese fishing village is a queer place in which to look for Kaoling porcelains; but, mark you, Ralph, that little village was all that remained of a once great and prosperous city whose ruins straggled back from the sea and covered many leagues of flat country, broken by jutting stones of half burned temples.""It was here those treasures were if the earthquake which had destroyed the city had spared the porcelains. So I made my strongest efforts to bear on the temple ruins, and in the end I met a measure of success. I was sorry that I had not persuaded you to accompany me on that quest; but, no; perhaps it was best that you did not."Beale stared into the fire with strangely lit eyes, and there was something in the rigidity of his attitude that brought Ralph Hillman to a sitting posture where he could watch his friend closely."Go on, Francis," he urged. "I wish I had been with you, danger or not.
You know I'm not afraid of that.""I know," said the other, with a long confident look at Ralph. "We have slept by campfires together, and you saved my life once. That was why I wanted to see you once more.""Once more!" repeated Ralph uneasily. "What do you mean, Francis? You are not going away again?""Never mind that now; you will understand after you have heard my story. As I said, I found the entrance to an especially promising temple and I planned to spend an entire day there, hoping to reach the inner shrine, where there might be a porcelain god, and I was almost sure to discover some other vessels of the coveted ware. Of course I had had help in my work, a gang of coolies had carried me and my gear day, but now that a free passage had been discovered I preferred to handle as I knew they would resent the removal of one article from the place, and I was after all I could get.""Before I started out that morning I had received word that Barnum and his party would join me on the 8th, that very day was the 7th of September. I was elated to think I was going to have white companions at last, much interested in the same pursuit that I was. I sent the boatman, who had brought the message, away rejoicing with a handful of money and so further excited the cupidity of my native servants.""I ordered my house set in order for a dozen guests, and so I went on to the buried city. I made my way down into the stone passage of the temple, found my way unchecked save by occasional blocks of stone, which I pried away, and at last I was within the inner shrine, where my wildest hopes were realized.""Such a collection of Kaoling ware you never saw, but Barnum will rescue it, and you may see it in the museum. It was while I was bending above the porcelain that the blow came—stab wounds one after another in my back and sides from a dozen treacherous knives. Then I was flung into a dark corner to die, while the murderers fled to loot my house.""I lingered until the evening of the 9th, and just as Barnum and his party reached me, before I could tell them who the guilty ones were, I died!""You what?" screamed Ralph, springing to his feet."I died," said the other quietly, "but I came to say goodbye." All at once Ralph was alone in the whispering forest, while Nip lifted his head in one long drawn howl.A week later Ralph Hillman struck civilization again. His first search of telegraphic news left him limp and white. The letters stared blankly at him:"It has been learned that Dr. Francis Beale, who had been traveling in China, was murdered by natives on the coast and supposed to have died on the 9th inst."

FASHIONABLE HATS FROM PARIS SHOPS.

Odd Crowns Almost Hidden on Lavishly Trimmed Headgear.

Some French milliners are emphasizing the seal brown color in millinery. It bids fair to supplant the black and white and blue and white alliance that was so strong.

The tam-o'-shanter crown on a flat brim is another type of hat favorably launched. This suggests a change from the beret cap, yet has all the becoming-ness of the cap worn by the peasants in Spain.

Just one extreme hat that takes us back to Empress Eugenie, or, still further, to the Watteau period, has a flat top. There is just a little gutter to suggest a crown, in which is laid a youth of flowers. The hat is raised from the hair by a rose covered ban-dant, and velvet ribbons tie it securely on the head.

The velvet facing is prominent, frequently combined with moire and fabrics that are excellent imitations of fur.

Trimming has moved toward the front, the stiff cockades, brushes and cord ornaments being particularly favored for hats to be worn with directoire and revolutionary suits.

The brim flares away from the face in many types, and huge buckles are noticeable, holding scarfs on practical hats for fall and winter.

Ribbon loops and bows are still good and inexpensive, while plumes have been highly favored for afternoon and evening.

Velours hats are in great demand, and the leading milliners in Paris are showing them with smart ornaments of pied edged faille ribbon.

Mushroom shapes with tam-o'-shanter crowns are the important word in the millinery story.

Sailors in many varieties of velvet and plush are favored for walking suits, if the showing of a well known house be an indication.

Ostrich fantasies are used for afternoon hats. Wings rank next in importance, the white vulture, gourd and magnifying glass being the greater part of the immense supply demanded by milliners.

House and Street Fabrics.

There is a marked contrast this season between the weight of the fabrics for the street and those for the house.
Of course there always has been this difference when one considered that cloth serves for the former and monsieur for the latter, but the difference of today is between satin frock and coat suits for strictly afternoon wear at formal functions and thick, shaggy, silky woollens for out of doors.

Charming Negligees.

Negligees appear in many charming designs. Embroidered net draperies are used over pastel linings--yellow over pale lavender, pink over blue or gray. Shadow lace is another effective drapery used.

Knew It Was the Best.

"What school of medicine does your son practice?"
"Are there different schools?"
"Sure there are."
"Then his is the high school."

Tasted Like It.

"I can't find my old shoes."
"Have you looked for them?"
"Everywhere."
"I'll bet the landlady cut that steak from them we had at noon."

TO PASS DAYTONA IN NIGHT

NO CHANCE FOR PEOPLE
HERE TO SEE PRESIDENT

SPECIAL TRAIN CARRYING EXEC-UTIVE TO GO THROUGH HERE AS SECOND SECTION OF TRAIN
NO. 37.

President Taft and party, enroute to Key West to sail for Panama, will pass through Daytona early in the morning next week Saturday. The exact time has not yet been decided, but the train will run as the second section of train No. 37. The party will travel on a special train and no stop will be made in Daytona.

The nation's executive will leave Washington at midnight on the second section of the Atlantic Coast Line train No. 83 and will arrive in Jacksonville the next afternoon. The party will be carried over the Florida East Coast railroad on a special train, which will leave Jacksonville early in the evening Friday and only necessary stops are scheduled on the run between Jacksonville and Key West.

President Taft has often expressed a desire to see the Key West extension of the East Coast railroad, and was keenly disappointed that he was unable to attend the celebration marking the opening of the extension at Key West last January. The trip as planned at this time will take the president and party over the extension in daylight and the party will reach Key West in the afternoon Saturday. The stop in Key West will be only of short duration and the executive will sail on the battleship Arkansas for Panama. The special train will carry the president's private car and an extra sleeper for the White House attaches and newspaper correspondents.
Those in the president's party will be the nation's executive, Mrs. Taft, the president's brother, C. P. Taft, Private Secretary Tom Branahan, and naval and military attaches.

Asa Paine, who had been in Jacksonville for a week or more came down to Daytona Thursday afternoon, and will spend a week or two here.
Mr. Paine for many years owned a winter home on South Ridgewood avenue, but disposed of it last spring.

W. L. Badger arrived Thursday afternoon from Minneapolis, Minn., and joined Mrs. Badger, who has been a guest at the Ivy Lane Inn for several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Badger are occupying for the season Dr. P. R.
Bennett's residence at the corner of Ridgewood and Orange avenues and adjoining the winter home of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Blodgett.
Later on they will be joined by their son, Lester. Mr. Badger and family have been here in previous seasons and were guests last winter at the Ivy Lane Inn.

By the reception given John Baldwin and Otis Pellecier when they appeared in their little vaudeville sketch on the stage at the Crystal theater last evening it is evident the local men could make good as a vaudeville team anywhere. The sketch was a scream from start to finish and is declared by those who saw the act to have been one of the best things in the line of vaudeville comedy ever pulled off in Daytona.
The announcement that the local comedians were to appear brought out a big crowd to the Crystal and the act was certainly well received.

Mrs. M. J. Haynes, who has been with her daughter, Mrs. V. C. Fuquay, and family at Holly Hill for the past three or four months, left by train from this city Thursday afternoon for Tampa, where she will visit her son, M. T. Haynes and family and another daughter, Mrs. Walter McClellan and family.
